

Living With Gifted Kids: The Good, the Bad, and the Awesome

Presented by Wisconsin Association for Talented and Gifted

Tuesday, February 18th, 2020, 8pm

Living with and working with gifted kids can bring many joys and challenges to the adults that know and love them. In this webinar, we will explore many of the characteristics associated with gifted kids, and we'll examine how these characteristics can provide both opportunities and challenges. We'll look at the "Eight Great Gripes of Gifted Kids," and examine how to navigate these, and explore the misunderstandings that others may have about being gifted. Additionally, we will look at what gifted kids need to be successful in school, and how parents, students, and educators can work together to provide challenging opportunities for growth. There will be time for questions, and suggestions for further learning opportunities. Please join us Tuesday, February 18, 2020 at 8pm. The webinar is available at no charge, however, registration is required at watg.org.

Webinar Speaker: Jacquelyn Drummer

Jackie Drummer served as the Gifted and Talented Coordinator and Differentiation Specialist for the School District of South Milwaukee from 1988–2015. For 44 years, she taught at the pre-kindergarten through college level. She holds a Bachelor of Arts Degree from Carthage College and a Master of Science Degree from the University of Wisconsin–Milwaukee. Both degrees are in Exceptional Education. Jackie is a Past President of the Wisconsin Association for Talented and Gifted (WATG), and currently serves as an advisor to the Board of Directors. Jackie is a SENG (Supporting the Emotional Needs of Gifted) national trainer and facilitator, and a certified literacy, team, organizational, systems, and transformational coach. She has worked with teachers and parents in over two hundred school districts and agencies in the nation and is in great demand as a consultant. She currently coaches educators, administrators, students, and their families in dealing with gifted issues. Her passions include reading, researching, writing children's books, traveling extensively, making music, and being a fun-loving grandma.
